

CARMEN GOT EXPELLED! : Character Sides

HEADMISTRESS GNARLY

Age: 40

Headmistress Tyrant

Personality:

Staying out of trouble is tough enough for Carmen, without the art-hating, eye-patched Headmistress Gnarly watching her every move. Nothing would make Headmistress Gnarly happier than expelling the girl and sending her off to a drab life of washing dishes. She just has to wait for Carmen to slip up... and if she can help grease the way to make said slip up happen (or have her Carmen-hating niece, Yvonne, assist in this goal), all the better.

(Wanna know a secret? Principal Gnarly doesn't really need the eye patch. Her eye is just fine, but she wears the patch to elicit sympathy and better intimidate the students. Yeah, that's how she rolls.)

When she's not plotting against Carmen, Headmistress Gnarly runs the school with an oppressive iron fist and keeps it operating with unyielding precision. (I think we know a certain curly-haired rebel who is going to gum up the works something fierce.) Gnarly's diligence is partly due to the fact that she's a control freak, and partly due to the fact that she's hoping to impress the dashing owner of the school who has unknowingly won her tiny, shriveled heart...

GNARLY SIDES

1. Gnarly

Gnarly catches Carmen.

Miss De la Cruz, since you were admitted here over my objections, I've put up with your rebellious antics. But this time... this time, you've defaced school property! Oh, how I've waited to say this. Carmen de la Cruz, you are EXPELLED!

2. Gnarly

The Baron loves Carmen's mural and asks Gnarly if she agrees.

(nervous hems and haws of mild approval) Of course, Baron...

3. Gnarly

Gnarly finally thinks she can get rid of Carmen.

I may not be able to expel you... but I can punish you! Let's just see how much the little rebel girl likes to paint... by painting all the freshman lockers! Yes, you will paint all the lockers and clean the boy's bathroom by 6 pm tomorrow or... YOU'RE EXPELLED!

4. Gnarly

Gnarly notices the Baron looking at her, sternly.

I'll get you next time, Carmen! I- (THEN SWEETLY) ...hope you don't die from your injuries.

5. Gnarly

I WILL EAT YOUR SOUL... er, in a manner befitting the headmistress of a prestigious bastion of learning.
